Extract from letter of
A. W. Weston Weymouth Oct 2nd
1848

"By the last Steamer I received a note from Miss Martineau enclosing two articles for the Liberty Bell one from "The venerable Mrs Fletcher late of Edinburgh an aged lady who condemned for all sorts of freedom in her young days and has born her testimony nobly during a long life, and in no cause more earnestly than that of Anti Slavery" The other is from "Our beloved Jane Arnold" Mrs Fletchers is a good sensible piece. Jane's is very so so, but seeing it is the Jane Arnold. Why, I suppose it will grace the Bell. Harriet goes on to say "I can give you no idea what it has been to me to meet your sister. It will do me good for the rest of my life—. The only drawback was that Caroline was not here too. They must come on their return and stay long enough for some little umplyings of minds & heart into each other."

All's well.

I think the Fair things have best come by the way of England & any way practicable. Otherwise they will not get here in time & there is a great deeay at that Fair N. J. Lu thinks L. says one spend much money in Nkes. I don't hardly think. L. & I will go to N. J. Lu after the Fair. We shall if possible or we should have to return to Guilford where we are all well at home & desire to be remembered to Aunt P. & aunt Hannah Best love to all. to Mrs Allen Susan Charles. People are talking Mrs Foster &c
